Katie Hudson Seymour Public investigation material

Binder references, police communications and witness leads

Prepared for Brandon Henry | 22 November 2026
Coverage window: 30 October-18 November 2026

What this PDF is

An authored summary and source guide to publicly displayed material. Katie Hudson Seymour's original binder was not obtained. This is a compiled reference copy, not the complete binder or an official investigative report.

The main finding

The public releases portray Katie Hudson Seymour as collecting material, updating a binder and supplying information to law enforcement. The correspondence presented by Fugitive TV concerns potential witnesses, other people Katie wanted examined, and questions about investigative follow-up. [S4] [S5] [S6] [S7]

What is included

Her compilation: the displayed reference to an updated binder and the document-numbering clues visible in the videos.

Her communications: summaries of the police-text and email releases, including concerns about accounts after 4:30 p.m.

The source trail: seven original video links, useful playback timestamps, and a separate transcript source for attributed accounts.

Two different people named Katie

Person	Role in this reference
Katie Hudson Seymour	Warren Hudson's mother; the person associated with the binder and communications discussed here. [S1] [S4]
Katie McCormack	The young woman whose reported interactions with Nolan on Horn Island appear in some of the messages. [S2] [S8]

02 / PUBLIC SOURCE REFERENCE

Her binder and communications

What the available public material supports about Katie Hudson Seymour's involvement.

An evolving compilation

A message displayed in the November 10 release refers to sending “an updated copy of the binder” and adding information. That supports describing a collection being revised. The visible message does not establish the original filename, final length or complete contents. [S4]

View the binder reference at approximately 22:30-23:00.

Information sent to law enforcement

The November 13 release examines emails attributed to Katie about another possible witness. It asks whether that person was identified and interviewed. The correspondence is evidence of the information Katie reported; the reported sighting and the investigative response require separate support. [S5]

The November 15 release discusses emails asking investigators to look into additional people. It also includes the host's account of speaking with Andrew Garrett. The emails alone do not establish misconduct or show everyone police interviewed. [S6]

The concern about 4:30 p.m.

In the document displayed near 37:32 of the November 18 release, the writer reports being told by an attorney that there were no witnesses after 4:30 p.m. and expresses surprise. This records the writer's account of that conversation; it is not itself an agency finding that no later witnesses existed. [S7]

The neighbor-related lead

The November 18 presentation is described by the publisher as Katie's account of information she supplied about her neighbor and her concerns about follow-up. The material reviewed here does not establish the neighbor's responsibility or a complete record of what investigators did. [S7]

The question these communications can help answer

What information did Katie report, when was it received, and what did investigators do with each lead? Those are separate questions from whether the underlying account was accurate.

Witness accounts and document clues

Read the stated account, its source and its limits together.

Accounts attributed to Katie McCormack

A November 12 Flo Show segment reads messages attributed to McCormack: Nolan reportedly indicated he was preparing to leave after calls to board, but she did not see him get on. She reportedly returned to her own boat and had not arranged to take him home. The commentator acknowledges incomplete context. The other participant's identity is not established by the excerpt. [S8]

An intention to leave, a witnessed boarding and a deliberate refusal are different propositions. One does not establish the others.

A later beach stay

In an interview clip replayed in the same program at 2:09:38, Katie Hudson describes taking Warren and friends to a beach location after threats while they were distressed and grieving. The clip does not provide a precise date or complete attendee list, or establish that accounts were coordinated. [S8]

What was visible in the PDF viewers

Public release / cue	Directly observed display	What it establishes
Nov. 10 About 16:20	A file preview with a name beginning “Pages 612 613 Faces Bl…”. [S4]	An excerpt filename. It does not verify the full binder's length.
Nov. 13 About 30:48	Viewer page 11 of 35; heading “Source page 277 image detail 1.2.” [S5]	The displayed file uses excerpt-page and source-page numbering.
Nov. 18 About 37:32	Viewer page 1 of 20; heading identifies source page 272 and an image detail. [S7]	Another displayed extract. Its 20-page count is not a complete-binder count.

Keep the numbering separate

A viewer page count describes the file currently open. A source-page label points back to another document. Neither should be used alone to claim an exact length for Katie's original binder.

Dates are expressed in U.S. Central time. Titles below are shortened descriptive labels.

OCTOBER 30, 2026

Interview with Warren's mother

Ray Marcel interviews Katie Hudson about Nolan, rumors surrounding the case and their effect on the people involved. This is a starting point for her own public perspective. The publisher's description does not identify an original binder title or PDF download.

Reported sightings near 6 p.m.

The program compares accounts placing Nolan near the island around 5:50 p.m. or shortly before 6 p.m. with McCormack-related messages and a Snapchat account of leaving a boat. The publisher identifies these times as witness estimates. A message timestamp or photograph overlay is not automatically the time of the event described.

Further witness statements and messages

The program compares reported sightings of Nolan and Katie with her reported account, alongside messages and photographs. Names are redacted and faces blurred. It presents agreements and differences in selected accounts; those comparisons do not resolve the full timeline or independently verify each statement.

Police texts and a photograph discussion

Messages described as exchanges between Katie Hudson and law enforcement concern other people who may have information. The program also discusses Garrett's statement about a photograph reportedly placing Nolan on the island after 5 p.m. The publisher expressly leaves the photograph's timing subject to authentication.

These releases revisit related material. They are not seven independent confirmations of the underlying accounts.

NOVEMBER 13, 2026

Emails and an additional possible witness

Marcel examines Katie's reported correspondence, how it relates to the proposed timeline, and whether another possible witness was identified and interviewed. This release also supplies the directly observed 35-page PDF excerpt documented on page 3.

NOVEMBER 15, 2026

Other people named in Katie's emails

The focus is information Katie supplied and her requests for investigators to consider other people. The publisher distinguishes the sender's statements and allegations from proof of wrongdoing or confirmation of who was questioned. The host also discusses his conversation with Garrett.

Katie's account concerning a neighbor

The release presents what Katie says she told police and the follow-up questions she raises. A displayed extract also contains her reported concern about the treatment of accounts after 4:30 p.m. The public presentation is not a complete agency response record.

Why some dates may appear one day later

Several uploads were published late at night in Central time. For example, the November 15 release was published at 11:02 p.m. Central, which was already November 16 in UTC. This PDF consistently uses Central calendar dates.

Useful records to pair with the public releases

The strongest follow-up would pair each communication with its complete thread, attachments, sent/received times and the corresponding interview or response record. The native photo or message record is needed to evaluate timing claims. A complete binder would also need a version date, original page count and clear provenance.

Method and scope

This reference uses original publisher titles, descriptions and publication metadata, selected legible video-frame observations, and the specifically cited secondary transcript. It is not a line-by-line transcript of every program. Short quotations retain their source context; the remaining narrative is a summary. Source links were checked during preparation on 22 November 2026.
